Hyrum Beely, well known sheepman, will replenish the supplies of his three camps in the vicinity of Hanksville with the aid of Uncle Sam the coming month, and if his experiment proves the success it promises, it may become quite the usual thing at least during the winter season. Something like two tons of grain, flour and other supplies composed the huge shipment entered at the local postoffice for mailing to the Wayne county point the other day. Nearly fifty dollars worth of stamps were used for postage. The shipment was the largest to go out from the local office as one consignment and will last the camp a month.

The vaudeville performance pre-success it was.

An impromptu program was

ANXIOUS ABOUT BEETS

Infested Districts Locally to Have Government Supervision.

James W. Jones, agriculturist in the sugar beet division of the department of agriculture of the United States, acting under instructions from his office in Washington, D. C., will undertake a survey of infested districts in the Utah division, marking the first of several co-operative campaigns to place the quality of the Western sugar beets on a higher plane.

The nematode is a parasitic pest which is reported infesting certain small sections of the state and causing considerable damage and loss of sugar content in the infected beet and in some cases destroying the crop.
The move on the part of the federal government will be commenced in the early summer, as soon as the appearance of the parasites can be observed.

The campaign will be undertaken in connection with the services offered by the county agricultural agents and other departments interested in the work.
Carbon and Emery counties, where there are large acreages of sugar beets to be planted this coming year, are to be visited in their turn if it is announced. Prof. Wallace Sullivan, agricultural agent at Price, will assist in the work.
